

The Washington Courts Historical Society Presents its Seminar

“Through the Years — Important Washington Cases and Their Enduring Significance”

Friday, November 20, 2009 — 9:00 a.m – 4:15 p.m.

Temple of Justice Courtroom, Washington State Supreme Court,
Olympia Washington

The day-long seminar features 13 presentations relating to significant cases that were heard by the Washington Supreme Court. Three Justices and other distinguished jurists and attorneys will make the presentations, including “Washington’s ‘Switch in Time Saves Nine’ Case,” by Chief Justice Gerry Alexander; “Girls of the Gridiron,” by Justice Debra Stephens; and “When to Apply the State Constitution ?” by Justice Charles Johnson. Topics range widely from Apples to Wobblies and include environmental issues, women’s rights, income tax, the state constitution, school funding, students’ rights, conjugal issues and recovery for injury. The diverse seminar is approved for 6 CLE units, including 1 CLE ethics unit based up the feature presentation by Mr. Egil Krogh, of Watergate notoriety, now senior fellow on Leadership, Ethics and Integrity, Center for the Study of the Presidency and Congress. The complete program is available on the Washington Courts Historical Society website at www.wacourthistory.org.

Registration is limited to 115 persons and space will be allocated based upon date of payment. The fee is $200, which includes coffee service and a buffet lunch, seminar materials, and introductory membership in the Washington Courts Historical Society. Current members get a discount of $10. Several places will be held for students at a $25 fee.
